

Career Center Assists UConn Students and Alumni Seek Employment

Doctor Michael Ego, UConn, Stamford

In the current economic times that we live, college students who are planning to graduate this May will face challenges in starting their respective careers. After spending countless hours in the classroom, laboratories and study sessions, the graduates are anxious to begin earning a living in the "real world."

The UConn Stamford Campus Career Center is a full-service student support system that provides all current students an opportunity to prepare to enter the workforce. All matriculating undergraduate students are provided career counseling (individual and group), career assessment, resume and cover letter preparation and critique, interview preparation, mock interviews (taped by appointment), counseling for graduate school exploration, internet training for job searches, and internship placement.

The Career Center also provides UConn undergraduate and graduate students, and alumni, access to the Job Posting Bulletin Board and Job Posting Resource Books, Career Workshops, Sophomore Career Symposium, Online job postings on monstertrak.com and HuskyCareerLink, and Career Fairs each April and November.

Employers who are searching to hire college graduates are able to post job openings

online at the UConn Stamford Career

Doctor Michael Ego

Center website, to utilize monstertrak.com link to UConn students, participate as a recruiter at the Career Fairs in April and November, and to create specialized recruitment days at the Employer Open House where a business or company can promote their organization in the campus concourse.

Upcoming events hosted by the UConn Stamford Campus Career Center include Career Panel and Symposium with a Focus on Science, which will be held on Thursday, February 19, from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. in the GE Global Classroom.

The Career Fair will host 50 employers from throughout Fairfield County who will be recruiting UConn students and alumni for position openings. The event will be held on Thursday, April 2, from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m., in the campus concourse.

For additional information about the UConn Stamford Campus Career Center services and events, please contact Halina Hollyway or Celeste Baran at 251-9549.